Deliver us, good Lord

Christopher Tye (c.1505–1572/3)

Edited by Jason Smart

© Jason Smart 2021
the world by fire.

thou shalt judge the world by fire.

when thou shalt judge the world by fire. This day is the day of fire, the world by fire. This day

This day is the day of ire and wretch-ed-ness and mi-se-ry, the great day is the day of ire and wretch-ed-ness and mi-se-ry, the great the great day and ve-ry bit-ter. There-fore what and ve-ry bit-ter. There-fore what shall and ve-ry bit-ter. There-fore what shall I, most mi-se-ra-ble shall I, most miserable wretch, either say or do when I shall

I, most miserable wretch, either say or do when I shall

-wretch, most miserable wretch, either say or do when I shall bring forth no good thing before so high a judge?

bring forth no good thing before so high a judge?

bring forth no good thing before so high a judge? This day is the

bring forth no good thing before so high a judge?

O Christ,

O Christ, we desire thee [now]

O Christ, we desire thee now,
we desire thee [now] have mercy, we beseech

have mercy, we beseech thee

thee now have mercy, we beseech thee

thee which cam'st to redeem them that were

which cam'st to redeem them that were lost, that thee which cam'st to redeem them that were lost.

lost. Suffer not those that be redeemed to be lost.

were lost. Suffer not those that be redeemed to be lost.

lost. Suffer not those that be redeemed, redeemed to be lost.
Editorial Conventions

The nomenclature of the voice-parts follows the Tudor convention. The original clef, staff signature and first note of each part are shown on the prefatory staves. No mensuration signatures are given.

Editorial accidentals are placed above the notes concerned and remain operative throughout the bar. Accidentals not given individually in the source but implied by the original staff signatures are placed before the note and have a superscript dot. Spelling of the text has been modernised.

Text

The text of Tye’s anthem is a translation of Libera me, Domine, de morte aeterna, the ninth respond from the Office of the dead in the Use of Sarum. The first part is almost identical to the translation printed in The King’s Primer of 1545, where it is the anthem after the third lesson at the service for the dead. Tye’s version might perhaps be older. It translates the complete Latin respond, including the verses Quid ergo miserrimus and Nunc Christe te petimus, which the Primer omitted in favour of a newly composed passage, ‘Deliver not to beasts…’.

1545
Deliver me, good Lord, from eternal death in that dreadful day when that heaven and earth shall be moved, and thou shalt judge the world by fire. This day is the day of ire, of wretchedness and misery, the great day and very bitter.
Deliver not to beasts, O Lord, the souls of them that confess thee, and forget not at length the souls of thy poor people.

Tye
Deliver us, good Lord, from eternal death in that dreadful day when that heaven and earth shall be moved, when thou shalt judge the world by fire. This day is the day of ire and wretchedness and misery, the great day and very bitter.
Therefore what shall I, most miserable wretch, either say or do when I shall bring forth no good thing before so high a judge?
O Christ, we desire thee now have mercy, we beseech thee which camest to redeem them that were lost. Suffer not those that be redeemed to be lost.

Source

| | | |
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th></th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>30480</td>
<td>(M)</td>
<td>f.51 at end: Doctor Tye</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>30481</td>
<td>(Ct)</td>
<td>f.57v at end: Docter Tye</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>30482</td>
<td>(T)</td>
<td>f.49 [no annotations]</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>30483</td>
<td>(B)</td>
<td>f.56v at end: doctor Tye</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>30484</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Notes on the Readings of the Source

Bars 36 and 37 are entirely editorial. It is clear that a repeat is intended because each of the manuscripts marks one with a signum congruentiae above the first note of the phrase This day is the day. However, there are no clues as to how it is to be performed: all the voices end together with a fermata and double ‘barline’ at bar 38. Was the repeat dovetailed into that breve chord to provide continuity and, if so, how? The edition suggests starting the repeat on the third minim of the chord, but the tenors could equally start on the second minim. Is the editorial suggestion even in the right place? Could Tye perhaps have intended the repeat to come after the very last chord of the work, in the manner of a respond?

It is a moot point whether the Es in the Mean and Countertenor in bars 40–44 should be natural or flat. The Mean implies the former, Countertenor the latter. One could argue that, the Countertenors being heard first, the Means would imitate them. On the other hand, Tye is here ornamenting the traditional plainsong, which has naturals.

In the notes below, each reference to a bar or group of bars is separated by an oblique stroke. Within these references multiple readings in the same voice are separated by commas and readings in different voices by semicolons. The order within each entry is: 1) bar number; 2) voice; 3) reading of the source. For extended readings, subsequent bar numbers are in brackets. Note values are abbreviated and italicised. Pitches are in capital letters, preceded by a number where necessary, e.g. 1E = first note E in the bar. Note values are abbreviated and italicised.

Staff Signatures and Accidentals

5 M b for 1E / 6 Ct b for E / 9 B b for A (probably originally attached to preceding note) / 12 T b for 1E; B b for B / 20 M b E / 48 B b for E /

Underlay

12 T 2E is m-rest, the world one note later. (13) fire (two syllables) below BA / 15 T mG is dot-crG gG underlaid with fire (two syllables) / 20–22 T underlay misery, the great ambiguous / 40–44 M Ct desire (three syllables, spelt de-sy-er) below EFE, thee below D (altered to agree with B) / 41–42 T desire (three syllables, spelt thus) undivided below 1A2B2A / 53–55 Ct Suffer not those that be redeemed to be all one note earlier / 55 T for to be below AGA /

Other Readings

33 Ct semibreve D is corrected crotchet / 30 T A is F#, (31) 1A is F without accidental /