The original notation is a whole-tone lower. This edition is based on the British Academy edition, edited by Frank Ll. Harrison. John Hetland and The Renaissance Street Singers have provided the translation, slightly revised the text underlay and musica ficta, and composed most of the second tenor part to replace Mundy's, which is not extant.

Your arrows are sharp,
peoples will fall under you,
in the hearts of the king's enemies.

Hear, O daughter, and consider, and incline your ear;

and forget your people, father's house. And the king will desire your beauty, since he is the Lord your God, and they rejoicing; they will be led into the temple of the king.

In place of your fathers, sons have been born to you;
make them princes over every land.
Your name will be remembered, O Lord, from generation to generation.
