

I Know My Soul Hath Power To Know All Things

Number 2 of Six Songs of Farewell

Words By: John Davies (1569-1626)

Editor: John Henry Fowler

Revision: 11/12/2005

Charles Hubert H. Parry

Soprano
Alto
Tenor
Bass

f ff p

I know my soul hath power to know all things, Yet she is 5

blind and ig-no-rant in all: I know I'm one of Na-ture's li-tle

blind and ig-no-rant in all: I know I'm one of Na-ture's li-tle

blind and ig-no-rant in all: I know I'm one of Na-ture's li-tle

blind and ig-no-rant in all: I know I'm one of Na-ture's li-tle

pp mf

9

kings, Yet to the least and vi-lest things am thrall. I kings, Yet to the least and vi-lest things am thrall. I kings, Yet to the least and vi-lest things am thrall. I kings, Yet to the least and vi-lest things am thrall. I f mf p mf

13

know my life's a pain and but a span; I know my sense is

know my life's a pain and but a span; I know my sense is

8 know my life's a pain and but a span; I know my sense is

know my life's a pain and but a span; I know my sense is

17

mock'd in ev - 'ry- thing; And, to con- clude, I know my - self a Man, which

mock'd in ev - 'ry- thing; And, to con- clude, I know my - self a Man, which

8 mock'd in ev - 'ry- thing; And, to con- clude, I know my - self a Man, which

mock'd in ev - 'ry- thing; And, to con- clude, I know my - self a Man, which

21

— is a proud — and yet, — and yet, — Yet a wret - ched thing.

— is a proud and yet, and yet, and yet, Yet a wret - ched thing.

8 — is a proud — and yet, and yet, Yet a wret - ched thing.

— is a proud — and yet, — and yet, — Yet a wret - ched thing.